

Are you interested in civil discourse on campus?

Here are some ways to get involved this Fall!

Participate in a Workshop on Civil Discourse!

- September 5 or September 23: Navigating Difficult Conversations about the 2024 Election Using the 4Cs of Civil Discourse
- September 12: Facilitated Dialogue on the 2024 Election/Political Issues
- Look for our First Year Success Series in-person and asynchronous sessions
- Self-paced online training on the 4Cs through Scarlet Canvas (free, available to public)
- Plan a 4Cs workshop of your own by contacting Kathryn Joyce (.173)

Become a 2024-2025 Undergraduate Civil Discourse Fellow!

- Learn more about civil discourse
- Develop skills for facilitating discussions on difficult topics
- Plan and moderate a Civil Discourse Forum on a controversial topic of your choice
- Fellows receive a $750 stipend
- Learn More and Apply here (deadline: Friday, September 20)

Attend a Civil Discourse Forum led by our 2023-2024 Civil Discourse Fellows!

- “Should the Personal be Political?” (November 8)
- “Is a Two-State Solution Still a Viable Option in Israel/Palestine?” (Date TBD)

Get GE credits for learning about civil discourse in ARTSSCI 2400/e: Conversations on Morality, Politics, and Society (3 credits)

Did you know you can earn a certificate in civil discourse?

- Earn the co-curricular Practicing Civil Discourse for Citizenship Certificate from CEHV by participating in workshops and events

Are you a senior doing research related to civil discourse? Apply to present at the Denman Undergraduate Research Forum for a chance to win The Civil Discourse for Citizenship Award or The Center for Ethics and Human Values Award!

- First place winners in each category receive $500
- Second place winners receive $250

Join OSU's Intercollegiate Ethics Bowl team to participate in in-depth discussion of complex ethical dilemmas drawn from real-world scenarios! Learn more here
